Little Darling Update

Although our golf season at Alexandria Golf Club is now behind us for this year, we continue to do significant work and planning in preparation for the construction of The Little Darling Par 3 course – an addition to our club and community that will have an incredibly positive impact for years to come.

The successful completion of The Little Darling Par 3 course is completely dependent on our ability to raise the needed funds for the project. As I have communicated previously, our cost to implement The Little Darling project is a fraction of what this exciting effort would cost most clubs and communities across the country to complete. The greatly reduced cost of the project is due to our ownership of the spectacular piece of property that will be The Little Darling home along with several of our member's generous donation of their time, expertise, and resources. The Little Darling project has demonstrated, once again, what makes our club and community so unique and so special – a broad willingness by members to contribute their resources to enhance our success!

Gratefully, we have already received monetary pledges that get us halfway to our needed $1.5 million to build the golf course next year. We can obtain the needed funds if only one-third of our current membership will make a pledge to contribute the $5,000 to $10,000 for a 10 or 20-year membership to The Little Darling Par 3 Course. I hope each of you will consider the incredible benefits the project will deliver and make a pledge to assist us with its successful completion.

There is a plethora of examples across the country that demonstrate the benefits a par-3 course can bring to a club and community. I've attached the URL to a recent article from Sports Illustrated titled "Long on Memories If Not Yards, The Short Course Craze is Here to Stay." I believe it will give you a better understanding of the terrific opportunity The Little Darling Par 3 Course will provide for AGC, the Alexandria community and our youth! Thanks for your generous support of The Little Darling Project!
